That's wright, it would be very useful to be able to sort the issue by custom fields

I'm very interested in this function

#3 - 2008-07-25 16:02 - Curtis Stewart

I just had a request from one of my customers to be able to sort by the custom fields also.

+1, this is a feature requested while evaluating whether to implement Redmine in our organisation.

We'd really like to have this feature. We use a "ranking" custom field that works similarly to a priority, but is more like an order of assumed completion.
Currently we have to keep exporting to excel, and sort there.

We use a similar custom field for sorting order that prioritized tasks should be completed.

ex.

Add the "severity" to the custom field.
I want sort by "severity".

Very nice feature.
Thanks Jean-Philippe.

Is it possible to merge to 0.8 ?

#11 - 2009-05-07 17:19 - Mark P

Is there any way to get this functionality in 0.8.3? I created a Unified DIFF from revision 2258, but it hung and did nothing when I tried to apply that patch to my 0.8.3 install. I suspect I am doing something incorrectly as I don't patch very often. Any ideas or direction would be very helpful.

This patch seems to be OK on 0.8.3.

Is this patch also working with 0.8.4

#17 - 2009-11-03 16:10 - Matthew Baker

I am running 0.8.5 and this fix brings up a GET/redmine error when I implement it. I even reverted back to 0.8.3 and I got the same thing.
