Description
I have some trackers with many optional custom fields.
In order to keep things clear, it would be good if project settings page would show only the custom fields that are relevant only for enabled trackers

yessss + 100

This becomes more and more important. At this point we have probably more than 25 trackers and more then 30 custom fields. It is a problem for project administrators to find and chose relevant custom fields for trackers they need. It is even harder as there is no way for user to check how trackers are configured.

As a result users

- chose custom fields that are not enabled for any of the selected trackers
- does not select custom fields that are enabled as they do not know which one are enabled

It would be ideal if custom fields could show up when a tracker is selected or at least they are somehow marked/enabled.
