Description Currently when I update a task assigned to me or a task that I reported, I receive email notifications. It doesn't make sense to me, because I don't need to be notified about my own actions. I just want to receive notifications when other people do something related to me or my tasks. Is that the expected behaviour? I found no options to change it. The way it's know I'm just getting used to ignore my many notifications and maybe, when it's something important, I'm just going to miss it.

Actually I found that option in my account settings.

I think it should also be available in `/settings?tab=notifications`, so I would be able to apply it for everybody.
