Description

Even though Redmine doesn't specify in its Gemfile a minimum version for the mime-types gem, it still assumes that version is 2.x or later. This is because it uses `MIME::Types.find`.

Unfortunately, upgrading to mime-types 2.x would break the dependencies of the mail gem.

The attached patch uses `MIME::Types.type_for` which is present in both 1.x and 2.x versions of mime-types.

Tested with Redmine 2.5.1 + ruby 1.8.7 + rails 3.2.17

History

`MIME::Types.find` has been added in mime-types here.

There is another error if this additional commit is not used.

Both commits are included in mime-types 1.23.

Particularly `MIME::Types.find` is used in `lib/redmine/mime_type.rb` since r12483.

The problem doesn't occur:

- either with mime-types 1.23
- or with mime-types 1.19 when `attachment:redmine-2.5.1-mime-types.patch` is applied
