Textile also specifies starting numbering from specified number like this:

!# Item 1 (ignore the exclamation mark)

random text

!#4 Item 2

Result should look like this:

1. Item 1

random text

4. Item 4

hello, i was confronted with the same problem but i think, i managed to solve it (with space on the following line after "#"; " _" means a space, because otherwise it would not display it riht):

written:

first item

continuing the list with item 2

this is item 2.2.

if you want a break between for between example 1. and 2. (please mind, " _" is a space the linebreak is "&nbsp;");

first item

_&nbsp;

second item

displays:

1. first item

description of the first item

2. continuing the list with item 2

1. this is item 2.2.

if you want a break between for example between 1. and 2. (please mind, " _" is a space the linebreak is " "):

1. first item

2. second item

i hope its not too late (and sorry i had to correct it several times), cheers
