Description

I have observed a little 'Bug', cause if i going to News and click on 'Add news' I'm forwarded to the 'Add news' area but the 'Add news' Button is displayed anymore.
My opinion is not to display the 'Add news' Button there. Take a look at the attached screen shot.

May be this is a feauture? or already fixed on a newer revision ?

Well, this seems to be fixed in the current version of redmine (trunk and version 2.2).

I think this could be closed, or does anyone else encounter this problem?

I'm closing it, see my prior comment.

This is still an issue IMO. It's about the fact that the "Add news" button is displayed while adding a new news item (thus being on the new news view). This also applies to two other new views: 'New message' and 'New document'.

This can be "reproduced" on *.m.redmine.org (and rm.o) as such. I think we can argue about whether it's a defect or not. The 'Add x'-functionality is not broken in any way, it's just the lone fact that the button is displayed on those views. I think this is more a design-consequence rather than a defect - not completely sure here, so correct me if I'm wrong.
More general: I think this is more of a FR to request improvements regarding the consistency of the UI, more specific the mentioned 'New x views'. What do you think?

#9 - 2013-01-14 06:13 - Daniel Felix

Oh, yes you're right. The button was just hidden behind an elemente as I tested it on my testsystem.

This relates to #12824.

- File fix_add_news_button.patch added

Hi,

I created a new patch to fix the problem. With my solution a user with manage news permissions (in any project) can see the "add news" button on global news index.

Without this patch, everyone can see "add news" button on global news index - even without permissions.

Thank you for detecting and reporting the issue.

The bug you is a new one in Redmine 4.2.0 (#33167) and is different from this one. I have opened #35308 for the bug and attached the patch.
