Description
In searching for how to do a horizontal rule on a wiki page, I found several references that stated <code><hr /></code> should work, but obviously it does not. However <code>---</code> , <code></code> , <code>___</code> and possible other methods can be used when they are a defined paragraph:
It would be very helpful if the methods for creating a horizontal rule were documented in the textile markup help. (And, surprisingly, the documentation on the textile page itself does not cover this.)
