| Description | |
| From #26791: | |
| BCC recipients | |
| Since each user gets their own mail, we can probably remove the setting to send mails with BCC completely. If plugins want to send mails to non-user recipients, we would have to make sure to either set the recipients manually on BCC or group them appropriately. It is not a required setting in Redmine core anymore though. | |
| I agree, the setting doesn't make any sense now. | |

+1

The setting has no effect since #26791 was implemented.

#4 - 2019-02-20 01:15 - Go MAEDA

Probably the patch also resolves #8516 because Redmine with the patch applied does not remove To field.

Agree. Also, #30787 can be closed now from my point of view if you don't refer to other problem.

Updated to remove bcc_recipients from settings.yml as well.

#9 - 2019-02-20 10:27 - Go MAEDA

- Category set to Email notifications

- Target version changed from 4.0.2 to 4.1.0

Since this patch adds a migration, I am changing the target version from 4.0.2 to 4.1.0.

- Target version changed from 4.1.0 to 5.0.0

Removing a setting may cause some plugins to error.

Setting it to a major release.

If entirely removing the setting is unwanted in 4.3, maybe we can deprecate it there.

That is, we could remove any code which uses the setting but keep the setting itself available in code (possible with some deprecation warning if accessed)

The next version is version:"5.0.0" which will contain other removals or breaking changes. I'm in favour of removing this and in the future, indeed, we can deprecate it few versions before.

- Status changed from New to Resolved

#18 - 2021-08-01 22:56 - Marius BALTEANU

Patch committed.

Plugins developers who are using bcc_recipients setting must add their own setting starting from Redmine version:"5.0.0".
