Description

It'd be nice if Redmine's issue filters included some notion of issue relations. That way you could build a query like so:

- Status is open
- Assigned to me
- Start is less than 0 days ago
- Has no blocking issues
- Has no preceeding issues

Doesn't look trivial, but shouldn't be too difficult. Looking into it now...

- File prototype.patch added

Attached is a work in progress. Shouldn't too difficult to attach the necessary filters. The only concern I have is that when looking for blocking issues, we want generally want open blocking issues. That's a fair number of subselect statements to get working. Could be unrealistically inefficient. :(

- File prototype2.patch added

Second prototype. Doesn't allow the selection of how many just yet (currently hardcoded to 1 or more), but it's working.

- File feedback.patch added

Okay, this seems to work and I'm happy with it. Could someone else take a look and provide feedback as necessary?

Eep. Obviously the .project file wasn't meant to be included.
