Description
As proposed in this forum-thread (message#7093) it would be nice if we could (at least) add items to these contextual "menus" using plugin hooks. I'd suggest to interpret the proposal done in the forum as: "please add a hook like :view_issues_show_contextual". Regards, Mischa.

I assign it to you Eric since we've disussed the feature over IRC and because you are the unofficial "maintainer" of the of the hooks-implementation in Redmine... :-) Correct me if I'm wrong... :silly:

+100 :)

This feathure really needed for plugins.

Current method is creating own `_action_menu.rhtml`, but this is way for conflicts with another plugins.

Example: changeauthor plugin & close issue button plugin as i see this is really easy for implement. It will be excellent if this feathure will be added into next redmine's release

We'd better have a non-hook based API for adding items to contextual menus, much like the main menu.

See #26385.

Closing this issue as 'wont fix'.
