Description
On Chrome and Chrome-derived browsers on Windows, when selecting the issue number in the title an extra whitespace at the end of the issue number. Our analysis shows this is due to the combination of the class="inline-flex" and the newline \n separating the h2 title and the open/closed span. One way to fix this would be to remove the inline-flex css directive from the h2 title, this breaks the layout though. Another way would be to remove the \n between the h2 and span elements. This might require some additional margin between the h2 and span elements as the \n causes a visible space between the 2 elements.
