Description
If you are giving clients access to redmine you really don't want them submitting tickets and assigning them to developers with out it going through a project manager. Having the ability to more granularly assign permissions to users would help a lot. Letting them create a new ticket but not assign it.

This is surely already the case. Create a new class of user and allow them to issue and withdraw tickets and nothing else.

I give a +1 to this feature request: it would be so lovely that only manager or developers could assign issues... :)

#3 - 2008-05-15 12:32 - Nikolay Solakov

+1 from me too :)

#4 - 2008-05-20 14:14 - Daniel Netzer

me too.

We have to consider that issues can be automatically assigned by selecting a category.

So there should be an additional permission "Select issue category" (besides "Assign issue") which will not be given to the "Client" role.

My software group would be very happy to have this ability. We are new Redmine users and like what we have seen so far...

we are having problems with anonymous users (who we allow to submit a new issue) they are assigning it to the list of developers and we dont want them to assign issues only submit the problem
so +1 for us also

i would like to reopen this as this is a problem as is spam by anonymous users

#9 - 2010-01-22 17:33 - Robert Cermak

+1
More generally: each role could have configurable list of items available on issue submitting.
It is not reasonable to enable to client to set up e.g. Estimated time, "Done %", or certain customized internal items...

Issue is definetely a must.. +1

- Category set to Issues permissions

#12 - 2011-09-15 02:18 - Kioma Aldecoa

This feature would be very useful for our workflow. It facilitates a model where only designated people actually review and assign issues.

#13 - 2011-09-15 02:19 - Kioma Aldecoa

- Assignee set to Jean-Philippe Lang

#14 - 2011-09-15 02:19 - Kioma Aldecoa

- Assignee deleted (Jean-Philippe Lang)

#15 - 2011-09-15 10:02 - Terence Mill

This is covered by feature request #8050 : "Mightful workflow field enhancement: visible, read only and mandatory"

#16 - 2012-10-28 19:23 - Daniel Felix

Well this could be also closed. With some changes to the workflow -> field permissions the reporter could be restricted to assign a ticket.
