Description

Currently, odd-numbered rows in tables such as issues list and spent time list have a grey background, and even-numbered rows have a white background. This can result in a darker appearance when the table has a few rows, as the gray rows become more prominent. Additionally, the gray first row immediately follows the dark gray header, creating a visually heavy transition.

The attached patch swaps the background colors of even and odd table rows.

When a table has a few rows, it results in a darker appearance:

When a table does not have a header, the first row looks like a header:
