Description
Currently, when editing an existing query that is set for all projects (global query), users can uncheck the "For all projects" checkbox, but this change is not actually saved when the form is submitted. This inconsistency between the UI and the actual behavior can lead to confusion. Even though the checkbox appears to be changeable in the interface, the system silently ignores this change when the Save button is pressed, which creates a misleading user experience. This patch modifies the query form to disable the "For all projects" checkbox when editing an existing query where this option is already checked (where @query.project.nil? is true and @query.new_record? is false). This makes the UI behavior consistent with the actual system behavior and prevents users from attempting to make changes that won't be saved. The implementation adds a simple conditional to the checkbox's disabled attribute: <pre><%= check_box_tag 'query_is_for_all', 1, @query.project.nil?, :disabled => (!@query.new_record? && @query.project.nil?), :class => (User.current.admin? ? '': 'disable-unless-private') %></pre> This ensures that: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• For new queries (both project-specific and global), the checkbox remains enabled• For existing queries where "For all projects" is checked, the checkbox is disabled and cannot be unchecked• For existing project-specific queries, the checkbox remains enabled
