

Redmine - Feature #5835

Allow links to other project's changesets

Description It would be nice to qualify the project of a link e.g. project-id:r20 to link to changeset 20 of project-id. This is especially useful for subprojects. Right now there doesn't seem to be a clean way to link to a subproject's changeset from its parent.

Also this is needed when someone commit to the repo with a text that should close or refer a ticket but the ticket is in a subproject of the project that has the repo.

Confused?

- Project 1 - Has the repo
 - Subproject 1 - Has the ticket that should be closed/refered

Better now? :)

Henrik, am I right when I say that this specific case is already fixed/implemented by Jean-Philippe with r3357 for issue #4674?

This was actually implemented for issue #7409 with the following syntax:

sandbox:r758 (link to a changeset of another project with identifier "sandbox") sandbox:commit:c6f4d0fd (link to a changeset with a non-numeric hash of another project with identifier "sandbox")

Closing as such. Please re-open if needed.
