Weirdly, it works fine for me, but it fails for some other people.

History

#1 - 2010-08-23 20:02 - mathew murphy

It looks as though this is caused by my LDAP authentication code returning the attributes using [ :foo => 'bar' ] syntax instead of { :foo => 'bar' }

What isn't clear to me is why the former ever worked...

#2 - 2010-08-26 07:19 - Jean-Baptiste Barth

- Status changed from New to Closed

Rails 2.3.8 is not supported for the moment. `stringify_keys!` is part of ActiveSupport::CoreExtensions and may have changed between Rails 2.3.5 and 2.3.8. Can you read requirements and tell us if you see the same problem with supported versions ? I close the issue for the moment, reopen it if you still have problems with those versions.

#3 - 2010-08-26 16:21 - mathew murphy

After changing my code to use curly rather than square brackets for the hash, it works--even with Rails 2.3.8.
