Description

A few suggestions for improvements to the log time function.

When logging time against a issue the '% Done' drop-down should also be present so we can set it as the project progresses

If the issue has 'Estimated time' the % done can auto populate against total hours loged vs hours estimated

If the issue has 'Estimated time' it should display the estimated time in the time logging page for reference

The logging window should also display total time logged for reference for this issue

If there is intrest in this function I would be happy to make wire frames.

We certainly would be looking for this function, specifically:

If the issue has 'Estimated time' the % done can auto populate against total hours logged vs hours estimated
