Actually, RubyGems 1.8 (and 1.7 ?) is not supported by Rails 2.3 / Redmine, so you should downgrade to 1.5 / 1.6

Thank you for your answer. The msg "no such file to load -- active_support" was repeated when installed 1.5.3, 1.4.7. When RubyGems 1.3.5 was installed the msg was gone, but another msg below is shown

-----
rake generate_session_store

rake aborted!
no such file to load -- hoe

(See full trace by running task with --trace)

#3 - 2011-05-25 16:21 - Etienne Massip

What's your gem list ?

#4 - 2011-05-26 01:20 - Hyosang Yoo

My gem list is below. Thank you~

Sometimes gem update --system downgrade gives a messy result, did you try with a bare RubyGems < 1.7 installation ?

#9 - 2011-05-27 13:49 - Hyosang Yoo

Thank you for your reply.
I removed and reinstalled RubyGem in order belows,

1) Removed rubygem.rb, ubygems.rb files and rubygems directory

---

u-eco:/usr/local/ruby/lib/ruby/site_ruby/1.8>ls gauntlet_rubygems.rb rs6000-aix rubygems.rb rbconfig rubygems ubygems.rb

2) Removed gems directory

---

u-eco:/usr/local/ruby/lib/ruby>ls
1.8 gems site_ruby vendor_ruby

3) Installed RubyGem.

Are there any wrong tasks in my RubyGem reinstallation?
Just a moment ago, I reinstalled RubyGem in order above.
But the msg "no such file to load -- active_support" is shown again.
Thank you for your help~
