Description A user at our Redmine has reported a wish to get a "global overview of Forums". That is, not a global forum, but a overview over available forums in all projects. I can also see that this would be a nice feature - as opposed to scanning all projects for forums, and new posts. I can also see that this wouldn't be appropriate for a Redmine with many large projects, as it would be cluttering and just too much information. Maybe something for the "Personalize"-page?

Maybe something for the "Personalize"-page?

A few "My Page" blocks would work good for this.

- Latest forum posts - same thing as Latest issues but for forums
- Forum threads without any comments - many forums have this features. It would show a list of forum posts that don't have any follow up comments. It's good to keep track of all the threads that might have been missed.

I was about to write a feature request on this when I realized there's already one.
Currently users can not easily see all forum posts they made, a block for "My page" could show those.
Any progress on this?
I read about a module "LatestForumMessages" doing this, but it depends on another module (BlocksLayout)...
I find it cumbersome to have to add this via multiple plugins...

Done, see #12664

IMHO it would be better to have this as a filter on the boards page instead of a block on "My Page"...
